

FLOOD HELPED IN OTHER DISTRICTS

Aided Saunders and Stuart—Socialist in Norfolk Spent Fifteen Cents

FLOYD COUNTY NOT COUNTED

Republicans Lose Votes—T. P. A. Officers Named as Delegates.

Representative H. D. Flood, of the Tenth District, expended a good deal more money trying to elect Henry C. Stuart in the Ninth and Judge E. W. Saunders in the Fifth Districts than in his own campaign, according to the statements he has filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. He had no opposition for re-election.

Mr. Flood says that he spent $24.50 for postal cards, $100 for stamps to mail his cards, $10 for stamps on letters, and made a contribution to Frank Moore, chairman, of Lexington, of $10. This makes a total of $144.50 to secure his own election.

Then follows the item of $400 for traveling expenses in the Fifth and Ninth Districts and a campaign contribution for the party in the Fifth.

He also contributed $25 to the State Democratic Committee, sending this remittance to Chairman Elyson.

In all, the campaigns, for himself and for others, cost Mr. Flood $569.50.

Socialist's Expenses.

C. E. Good, the Socialist candidate for Congress in the Second District, expended a grand total of 15 cents. Twelve cents of this was in sending a notice of candidacy, and 3 cents for postage on his statement of expenses.

However, Mr. Good knows of amounts expended by his friends to secure his election, of which also, under the law, he must give an account. The local Norfolk Socialist party spent $10 for 5,000 circulars, while the national office of the party spent $4.50 for 10,000 circulars, and another 1,000 batch of arguments was purchased at a cost of $4.75. Envelopes cost $1, postage $4.25, and an advertisement in the Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch $4, making a total of $28.

FLOYD NOT COUNTED

Notes for Parsons in Wrong District

It has developed that in counting the votes of the recent election, the Republicans of Floyd county do not figure in the returns. This county was in 1908 removed from the Fifth District into the Sixth, but in the election of that year the Republicans of the county voted for the Republican part for John M. Parsons, their candidate in the Fifth, to make this an issue in a contest, while the Democrats of Floyd voted for Carter Glass, their candidate in the Sixth. The votes were then counted and certified accordingly, and were made a part of the record of the contest before the House of Representatives.

This year the Republicans followed the same course, carrying the county by a large majority for Parsons over Glass. Inasmuch as these two men are in different districts, the State Board of Canvassers, after due consideration, decided that there was no warrant for these votes, and they were not counted. The Democrats of the county, who voted for Mr. Glass, were then counted, as would have been those of the Republicans had they voted for Allison, the Socialist candidate, as most of the Republicans of the rest of the district did.

BLOOD DISEASES CONTAGIOUS TROUBLES

Contagious Blood Poison more thoroughly permeates the system than any other disease. Its infectious virus contaminates every corpuscle and tissue of the circulation, and for this reason its symptoms are of a varied nature. When it enters the blood it is but a short time until the mouth and throat begin to ulcerate, the skin becomes spotted, rashes and eruptions appear on the body, sores and ulcers break out, the hair falls, and frequently nails on hands and feet thicken and come off. Mineral medicines which simply shut the poison up in the system should be avoided, for when such treatment is left off the old disease will break out again, often worse than before. S. S. S. cures Contagious Blood Poison permanently, and it does so because it thoroughly purifies the blood. S. S. S. goes into the circulation, and drives out the last trace of the destructive germs, adds richness and vigor to the circulation and allows it to nourish the diseased portions of the body back to health. S. S. S. is purely vegetable, being made entirely of roots, herbs and barks, without a particle of mineral, and its vegetable ingredients always hasten the cure by toning up the stomach and digestive members. Home Treatment book and any medical advice free to all who write.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORK ADVANCED

During the past two years, or more properly since the first Virginia Baptist Summer Encampment, there has been a revolution in Richmond in Sunday school work. Since the organization of the State mission board, the Sunday school and cottage work having been placed under that board, the emphasis has been placed upon efficiency in the schools. The idea is to prepare the schools for dealing with their possibilities. Here are a few of the things accomplished by the schools mentioned:

First Church—1. School scientifically graded; 2. special equipment provided for beginners, primaries and juniors; 3. new equipment provided for three adult classes; 4. teacher training class graduated, second class in progress now; 5. church formally took charge of the Sunday school; 6. house-to-house canvass of community, looking to enlargement; 7. home department organized.

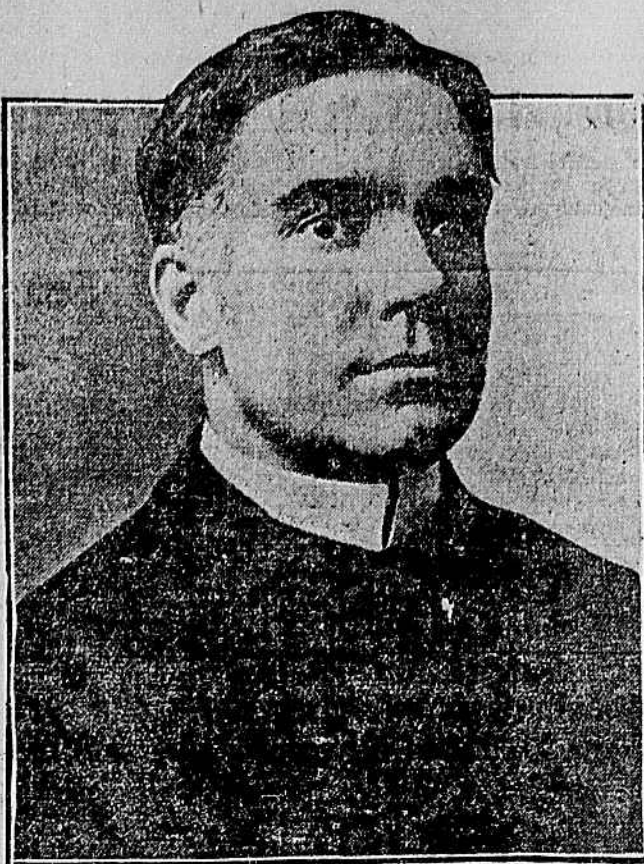

Second Church—1. Individual class rooms provided; 2. essential equipment for the several departments furnished; 3. the graded system adopted with great success; 4. manual work inaugurated; 5. adult class grown to large proportions; 6. home department organized.

Third Church—1. Men's Bible class established and equipped; 2. school put upon a graded basis; 3. new equipment for elementary and intermediate departments; 4. Baracca and Philatheas class organized; 5. home department organized; 6. steadily increasing in efficiency and numbers.

Tabernacle Church—1. school's grading greatly improved; 2. new building begun; 3. teacher training class in progress; 4. home department organized; Baracca and Philatheas organized.

Fulton—1. Elementary department organized and graded; 2. special equipment for beginners and primaries; 3.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

Danville, Va., November 30.—Will Mcbane, a negro, nineteen years of age, and son of Pink Mcbane, who is in the Chatham jail awaiting electrocution for the murder of his wife, Fannie Mcbane, last August, was shot and killed last night by Alexander Bollinger, a foreman for the Riverside Cotton Mills. The shooting occurred at about midnight, at the home of Bollinger, where Mcbane had gone to see a colored servant.

The dead negro was the cause of the murder of his mother. His father was unable to control him, and the mother sided with the son. Pink Mcbane came enraged and killed his wife, but failed in his efforts to kill his son, who fled.

peration as have assailed few men.

It was this realization that led Dr. Cook to work on his story. He has told the editors of Hampton's in his conferences with them that to him the honor of discovering the North Pole no longer means anything. His sole desire is to make the people of the United States believe that he went through during his two and a half years in the Arctic fastnesses and to make them see what processes of thinking, or lack of thinking, it was that led him to do the thing which, confirmed in the average mind, the worst suspicion against him.

Dr. Cook has been working on his story day and night since August 19, in order that there may be no confusion about the story's authenticity, Dr.

porter was sent to Petersburg to make an investigation. It brought no result.

It has been pretty clearly established that Mrs. Brown has not returned to her parents' home, else why the arrival of her mother and her brother here? But there are other hiding places to which the woman might have gone, and she might remain and live in New York, or in Philadelphia or Baltimore, for that matter, for years without being heard of.

No Trace of Her There.

And now comes the story of her suicide in the reservoir. The east basin, in which her hat was found, has been thoroughly dragged from end to end and from side to side. No trace has been found. Superintendent Davis said last night that all of the water from the east basin will not be emptied until late to-morrow night, or Saturday.

The fact amounting to about two and one-half feet a day. Mr. Davis does not expect to find more than ten inches of mud on the bottom, and it is doubtful, therefore, if this would be sufficient to hold the corpse if Mrs. Brown really killed herself.

Having eliminated the drowning theory, the public has generally accepted the belief that Mrs. Brown, or some one else, deliberately tossed her hat into the water and left her parasol on the reservoir steps, merely to avoid suspicion while she was fleeing from the city. There has been a disposition on the part of some to believe that she was murdered, but the absence of any motive that can now be explained leaves that idea open to serious doubt.

But even when she was found, a few minutes after the finding of the hat and umbrella Brown telephoned to Parkkeeper Humphrey Calder to know whether a woman had been seen in the park. He explains that by saying that she had gone there and also to Libby Hill Park on the day before, when she looked into the water.

Real, Deliberate Work.

As has been stated before, the umbrella was hardly wet, though it had been raining and drizzling all the morning. If it had been used in the rain, it would have been wet all over. The hat was wet only where it touched the surface of the water. None had soaked through. Only a few minutes could have elapsed from the time they were found, left until the police have been found. Apparently the time they were found, left until the police have been found. Apparently the time they were found, left until the police have been found.

Of course she could have worn one hat and have carried the umbrella down.

Then, having left the umbrella on the steps and having thrown the hat she carried into the water, she could easily have left and caught a train out of the city. If she did this, she probably never thought of the effect on the public when its water supply was being dragged for her body, and if she were merely working a blind to throw searchers off her track, she probably never thought that it must be discovered in time with all certainty that her body was not in the reservoir.

The case is one either of a woman running away from her husband and home, or it is a mystery which the public demands should be cleared by the police.

Worried By Arrest.

There is some background for the theory that Mrs. Brown was worried because her father-in-law, Moses Brown, is now under bail for his appearance on December 2 in Police Court. He was arrested a week ago on suspicion of having received goods stolen from the Chesapeake
